

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

A dynamic workload feedback mechanism is provided at a service provider to notify a client a current workload of the service provider in a switched fabric in order to prevent unnecessary timeouts and retries of duplicate service requests.